

PERSPECTIVE

WINTER 2010

RETRO
CURRENT
CHANGE IS GOOD

CLASSIC
BOCH
CLASSIC MEETS
ECCENTRICITY

POLISHING AN OLD GEM

A DELICATE BALANCE OF REDESIGN,
SUSTAINABILITY, AND PRESERVATION

The addition was built over an existing sun room and increased the home's livable space by 400 square feet.

On the homeowner's wish list - incorporate a reclaimed stained glass they had acquired in their travels, as a window. This afforded the homeowner a stunning centerpiece that extends up to a portion of the vaulted ceiling, over their free-standing Bain Ultra Naos, remotely operated, air-jet tub, without sacrificing any energy efficiency.

A large glass enclosed steam shower with two rain shower heads, a handheld shower head and a rain shower tile installed in the ceiling above is situated in the corner of the bathroom, facing an intimate seating nook. Hung above for a dramatic touch of lighting is a chandelier.

A floor to ceiling vanity offers double sinks, a granite counter top, recessed lighting, display shelving and hidden storage.

Ultimately, this new bathroom offers more than privacy when guests visit - it's a luxurious retreat. ❖

Wish: Incorporate a reclaimed stained glass window from glass acquired while traveling.

time-out for a spa retreat

An 18th century residence in Duxbury, Massachusetts is home for two professionals. However, it did not include a master bathroom when the couple moved in. The homeowners had to share the same bathroom with guests when visiting, which did not allow much privacy for either party.

A new addition was added to accommodate a master bathroom and a walk-in closet, accessible directly from their master bedroom. Thorson Restoration and Snow and Jones Kitchen & Bath Solutions collaborated on the project to create a new room that contains ample space and storage. It now incorporates a number of modern spa-inspired details without sacrificing the style & Integrity of their late 18th century home.

Steam Shower with travertine floor and multiple shower heads